Richest Resources Said to Lie in Mindango and Sulu Archipelago

CEBU BECOMES BIG NATURAL ENTREPOT

Since 1924, 20,000,000 Pesos of Capital Have Been Invested in Business in Cebu

The author of this article is a recognized authority on the Philippines. He accompanied Col. Carmi A. Thompson of Ohio during his survey of political and economic conditions in the islands for President Coolidge, and presents first-hand information concerning the Thompson mission and the present situation in the archipelago.

By RALSTON HAYDEN, Ph. D. Professor of Political Science, University of Michigan

One of the outstanding conclu sions to be drawn from a general conditions in the Philippines is that the Visayan Islands, the central group lying between Luzon and Mindoro to the north and Mindanao to the south, will profit more immediately than any other section of the country from the rapid economic development of the Archipelago. A number of the islands of the group are relatively undeveloped, and if capital were to flow into the Philippines a reasonable proportion of it would be invested in the Visayas.

The richest undeveloped resources the great island of Mindanao and in the Sulu Archipelago, and it is there that the largest foreign investments are likely to be made. Because of geographical proximity and the foot-hold which they already have there the Visayans would also be tremen-dously benefited by the depelopment of these islands to the south. They have, therefore, a more immediate have, therefore, a more immediate and direct interest than any other native group in the formation of conditions in the Philippines which will make it possible for foreign capital to assist in the development of the islands with safety both for the investors and the Filipino people.

The approval by King George of the appointment of Charles Vin-cent Massey as "His Majesty's en-voy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Washington to represent the interests of the Dominion of Canada," raises the in-teresting question as to the status and duties of the new envoy with relation to the present services of the British Ambassador in the American capital. It was officially American capital. It was officially announced as far back as June 7, last, that Mr. Massey had been offered the post which has now received royal sanction. The official intimation did not come until late in September, on the eve of the Imperial Conference. The appointment, according to The Times, "will be regarded with favor by all elements in the Dominion," where the minister-designate is known as "a moderate imperialist with a wide knowledge of business conditions, who brings energy and determination to every problem which he attacks." The following article deals with the status of the new Canadian Minister to Washington,

Break With Mexico Unlikely in Opinion of Senator Borah

Chairman of Foreign Relations Committee Sees No Confiscation in New Land Laws

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 - The confiscation of legitimately acquired foreign-owned properties by enforcement of its new land laws, but merely desires to "squeeze out" illegal claims, in the cpinion of William E. Borah (R.), Senator from Idaho and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. This interpretation of the Mexican Government's attitude is predicated by Mr. Borah, on the last of the Mexican notes recently published. In this communication the Mexican ment wishes to consider individual cases as they arise in order to weed out claims to holdings founded on illegal or questionable titles.

Mr. Borah holds the view that the Mexican Government has full right that no foreign government has a right to interfere. He is inclined to feel that the Mexican Government will accede to American demands sufficiently to avoid confiscation of legitimately acquired properties, while retaining the right to evacuate all illegal claims. That there are foreign-owned holdings of questionable totle is not doubted by the Idaho

Government requested the citing of "concrete cases" to enable the application and interpretation of its

Thinks Break Unlikely A break with the Mexican Gov-ernment over the oil and land controversy is unwarranted at this time, Mr. Borah contends. He does not believe one will result. The United States, he points out, is in a much more advantageous position to press its case, by being on diplomatic re-lations with Mexico, than if such-associations were discontinued.

In the matter of recognition and threatening its discontinuance Mr. Borah spoke disapprovingly of the State Department's policy. He con-tended that recognition of a governimply approval of that form of government. He argued that recognition was merely a process of establishing contacts between operating govern-ments for the conduct of interna-tional business of every bind. tional business of every kind. To make of the grating of recognition a "warrant of approval" was strongly, condemned by Mr. Borah, who held that such a policy is contrary to American traditions.

A score of Christian Scientists told how the understanding of God in Christian Science had made every day a day of thanksgiving for them, and others were awaiting their turn to speak when the time for testinonies was over.

Through all these expressions there was noted a deep appreciation for the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, and for the devotion and courage with which she labored to establish the Christian Science movement so that its healing Truth might reach all mankind.

Many instances of healing and heartfelt expressions of gratitude based upon their understanding of Christian Science as learned from the two textbooks of Christian Science Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures were made from the floor and the galleries of the great auditorium.

In closing, hymn No. 240, "All power is given unto our Lord," was sung, and the Scientific Statement of Being from Science and Health, p. 468: 9-15, was read together with the correlative Scrip-ture, I John 3: 1-3. The service then was closed with the benediction, "And the Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen." NEW POST GIVEN OCEANOGRAPHER

Dr. Charles J. Fish Selected as Director of Buffalo's New Museum

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Nov. 26 (A) -Dr. Charles J. Fish, resident oceanographer at the station of the United States Bureau of Fisheries here, has been chosen director of the new Buffalo Museum of Science Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Fish is one of the youngest men in the country to be chosen for such a position. He has been stationed at Woods Hole since 1922 and has sent in his resignation to the Government, effective Jan. 15. The museum trustees indicated that they sought for a director a man who would be modern enough to make the institution a vital force and keep it in the forefront of research and endeavor. They sought, moreover, a man who was also a recognized authority who had estab-lished personal contacts with leaders of the world of natural science. These qualities, they said, they found combined in the youthful oceanographer.

Through large endowment funds now being donated, the trustees pro-pose to make the Buffalo museum one of the most important in the country. Dr. Fish, taking office at the inception of the project, is expected to have an important part in planning the policies and forming the character of the institution. The

Thus autonomy has been reconciled with unity, a unity which has been evolved historically but which is also of free choice—for this is the essence of absolute equality. There is no unwilling member of the British Commonwealth. The spirit which animates and inspires the whole is that of cordial co-operation and this applies to foreign as well as domestic affairs within the sphere of each and all. In practice this will mean no departure from the principle of the diplomatic unity of the Empire, for contact and consultation will be maintained incessantly between its component parts.

It is worth while to look back little. The question of the diplomatic representation of Canada at Washington was the subject of prolonged negotiation in 1919 and 1920 between the Imperial and Canadian governments. The result was announced in the House of Commons in May, 1920, by Mr. Bonar Law, then Prime Minister, as an agreement that the King, on the advice of his Canadian Ministers should appoint a minister plenipotentiary to have charge of Canadian affairs, and to be at all times the ordinary channel of comnunication with the United States Government in matters of purely Canadian concern, acting on instrucions from and reporting direct to the Canadian Government. This minister plenipotentiary was to be accredited by the King the necessary powers. But in his re-marks Mr. Bonar Law made it plain that the minister was to hold a quasi subordinate position to the British Ambassador at Washington, for the character of the institution. The minister was to take charge of the museum plans to send out an expedition annually on most of which Dr. dor was absent on holiday or for Fish and Mrs. Fish will go as active any other reason. RELIEF RUSHED TO STORM ZONE Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Missouri Tornado Victims Being Cared For LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 25 (P)— Relief was being rushed from various sections today, into the tornadospent zones of four states, Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri and Louisiana, where the storm casualties totaled 71. The Arkansas fatalities 100 to 10,000,000, larger than that the visitors point out. The commodities that have the greatest future possibilities in this vast market include meat, bacon, butter, cheese, eggs and fruit. As an example of what can be doze in the way of trade development, the tremendous increase in the import of Canadian apples is cited. Only five years ago the first shipment of apples from Canada, consisting of 5000 barrels, was made. Last season no less than 200,000 barrels were imported into South Wales.

CANADIAN TRAINMEN DECIDE ON WALKOUT

Only a "Satisfactory Settlement" Can Prevent Strike

Railroad Trainmen have ordered a dressed a large audience at Temple Beth-El. warkout of their members and of the yardmen of the railroads of Canada, unless, they are given a 6 per cent increase in wages. The men have been demanding pay commensurate with that given for similar work on the railroads of the United States.

In all, 15,000 men will carry out

"peaceful withdrawal" from their jobs, unless a "satisfactory settle-ment" of the wage dispute is reached. The Brotherhood of Engineers iz not affected by the decision of the con-ductors and trainmen to walk out.

S. N. Berry, senior vice-president of the Order of Railway Conduc-tors, spokesman for the men, says no date has been decided on for a general walkout. An attempt was made recently to settle the dispute between the men in the railway companies through the medium of the Federal Department of Labor. This met with failure, and a ballot was taken by the men. This favored calling a strike.

Advices from Ottawa say that no official pronouncement in regard to the proposed strike is expected to be made by the Canadian Government until the union leaders make

It cannot be em hasized too strongly that the Free State Government is more strongly established than at any time since was formed in 1922.

In discussing the question with one of the representatives of the group mentioned, he put forward the view that he attaches no importance whatever to the proclamation and the only obstacle he had to overcome n carrying out the big project was the tariff issue which is being largely discussed in view of the coming Free State elections. He stated that those interested in these schemes have recently passed some days motoring through various parts of the Free State investigating local conditions and possible sites for large hotels and factories. IRISH RATIFY COURT PROTOCOL

Pledge of Adherence to World Court Is Without Reservation of Any Kind

By Wireless from Monitor Bureau LONDON, Nov. 26-It is now disclosed that the Irish Free State has ratified the protocol pledging adherence to the World Court. The ratification, which is without reservations of any kind, took the form of a letter to the Secretary-General of the League, dated as long ago as Aug. 21. Adhesion does not include acceptance of the so-called optional clause which gives the court jurisdiction over treaty interpretation, any question of international law, the existence of any fact which if established would constitute a breach of international obligation, the extent or nature of reparation for a breach of international obligation. Abyssinia, whose acceptance of the World Court's jurisdiction is also announced, has accepted the optional clause for five years, regarding all disputes with "any other member or state accepting the same obligation . . . excepting disputes in respect of which the parties have agreed to have recourse to another method of

Important Announcement

Friday and Saturday

November 26 and 27 For many years the two days following Thanksgiving have been days of great importance in the selling events of Chandler & Co., especially in the departments of dresses, coats, hats, furs, sweaters, Infants', Children's, Juniors' underwear, corsets, negligees, gloves, stockings, robes, silks, Oriental rugs, upholstery and linens.

Furthermore:

This Annual After-Thanksgiving Sale will probably be one of the most important of all these successful events due not only to the fact that Chandler & Co. have had a tremendous Fall business, but because their stocks have been in condition to allow them to buy the finest assortment of goods at the lowest market prices. Naturally, after heavy selling, there will be an accumulation of odd lots of very desirable merchandise to be offered, some of them originally marked at low prices and further reduced for this great annual event. In addition to these markdowns from their stock, many desirable lots that Chandler & Co. have been able to purchase in the last few days will be included in this sale. at exceedingly low prices.

WORCESTER WINS EASEMENT CASE

Supreme Court Holds Land Used by Public 60 Years Cannot Be Withdrawn

WORCESTER Mass., Nov. 26-Special)—The full bench of the sachusetts Supreme Court has handed down an important decision in a Worcester "right-of-way" con-troversy which, by reversing the de-cision of a land court judge, gives Award Announced the inhabitants of Worcester and the general public an "easement" over certain property located in the center of the city's business district.

T. Scott. Since 1867 the public has used a large part of this strip of land as a sidewalk and for 58 years the city has had a sidewalk there.

those from whom he received the title to his property have been assessed any taxes. Recently Mr. Scott petitioned the land court to have his title to this strip of land registered Associate Justice Clarence C. Smith found against the city of Worces-ter's claim that its inhabitants and the public generally had acquired a right of way over this land which could not be abrogated. The City of Worcester appealed.

The decision of the supreme cour says, after relating the facts, that "there is no evidence that the petitioner's predecessors in title objected to the construction of the side walk or that he or they ever ob-jected to its maintenance by the city." The Court also finds that "it does no appear that the petitioner or his predecessors posted any notices on the land as provided (by statute) for the purpose of preventing the ac-quirement of an easement over the

In view of the facts, says the Court, "it is manifest that the city and the public have acquired by prescription an easement over the land in question. For nearly 60 years the city has maintained a sidewalk over this land for pedestrians and during all this Among the visitors from various time the sidewalk has been used by the general public in large numbers.

From the outset it was clear that Mr. Collins is possessed at a voice of much natural loveliness. Range and quality are both praiseworthy. The lower register has tones of full, rich resonances. Through the middle portion there are gentle contours and soft velvety surfaces. Only with higher tones came evidences of pressed and uneasy production.

As natural endowment had been apparent from the start, so were some deficiencies. Mr. Collins, for all his ability, does not yet seem altogether prepared for the exigencies of concert work. He does not have a fall comprehension of stylistic ten-

At the time of the Paris Exposition in 1900 a small group of people gath-ered in conference and discussed the question of art education, drawing and art applied to industries. A few Americans were present. Thus the first international art congress was established and an international federation was organised to carry on the activities of future congresses which were proposed for every four years. Since that time four congresses have been held as follows: Berne, 1904; London, 1908; Dresden, 1912; Paris. 1925.

The federation is an international group of people interested in the arts and art education. The officers are the official heads for each congress and plan, organize and conduct convention of members and delegates from representative countries. Sybilla M. Weber

A small group of eichings Sybilla Weber are shown in the print gallery at Vose's. Animals, esecially dogs in animated portrayals, constitute the repertoire of this etcher. She has a faculty to feel just the special qualities of every variety of the species; there are terriers and setters, Russian hounds. Each has its peculiar alertness. Each has its own personality if one can call it such. The artist has an indubitable appreciation and understanding of these pets and produce some extremely interesting portraits.

Both chamber bureaus wish to see Boston compare favorably with other Atlantic ports, so that business may be attracted to this port. Preliminary steps in the survey, already taken, show many incongruities existing at Boston, such as ships docking at some railroad piers without charge and others at privately owned AND CONDUCT EXHIBIT age for such consignees as take deivery by railroad and charges for those using trucks.

Another movement recently started in Boston was to put a flat charge against all ships docking at this port, on the basis of the registered tonnage of the vessel.

In such cases, as frequently occur here, where a vessel comes to Boston to maintain an established service and has only a few hundred tons of cargo, this charge is declared to be absolutely prohibitive, when based on capacity of the vessel, say shipping men.

Any custom already established, practice that is contemplated, or charge that constitutes undue discrimination and therefore hurts the commerce of the port of Boston, is detrimental to the good of the port, and will be brought to the attention of the I. C. C. for adjustment, the bureaus declare.

TTTEE ELACIS OF TAM UNDER . THE . EAVES . OF GREATER BOSTON BUILDINGS

Boston has its halls of fame in lists of illustrious names heren into the stone beneath the eaves of public buildings, tributes to noble men and scomen for their contributions to the advancement of mankind. Accounts of some of the achievements of those named in these scrolls of honor are given in a series of cameo sketches presented by The Christian Science Monitor from day

"Arkwright, Watt and Whitney and when he took the case to court, were the three men that did most for the Georgia juries favored the demankind of any of their contempora-ries," said Robert Fulton. Two of Discouraged, Whitney left the these, Arkwright and Whitney, form the subjects for today's little blog-where in 1798 he started the manufacthe subjects for today's little biographies. Both names appear on the walls of the Boston Public Library and Massachusetts Institute of Techlogy. Brief sketches are set forth

ARKWRIGHT (ark' rit), Sir Richard, was born at Preston, in Lan-cashire, in 1732 and in his early youth was a barber. He is reputed to have invented the machine for spinning cotton which aided greatly in the expansion of cotton manufacture in Great Britain. He set up his machine at his birthplace in Preston when 36 and in the following year, 1769, patented his machine. He went into partnership with Need and Strutt at Nottingham and two years later established a spinning mill on the Der-went at Cromford. The power used was furnished by water and his ven-ture proved successful. He became the proprietor of other mills and con-trolled the market for cotton yarn for some years.

Then his patent was contested and he lost it in 1781. His business, how-ever, continued to prosper. Ark-wright was knighted by George III in 1786 and it is said he left an estate of £500,000. Arkwright also founded the pioneer of present day factory ems. He was a man of energy and perseverance.

Of him says Dr. Ure, "It required of him says Dr. Ure, "It required a man of Napoleonic nerve and ambition to subdue the refractory tempers of work people accustomed to irregular paroxysms of diligence, and to urge on his multifarious and intricate constructions in the face of prejudice, passion, and envy. Such was Arkwright, who, suffering nothing to turn aside his progress, arrived gloriously at his goal, and has forever affixed his name to a great era in the annals of mankind."

In 1804, the Legislature of South Carolina paid Whitney $50,000 for his patent rights on his gin of which Judge Whitney said in 1807: "We can't express the weight of the obligation which the country owes to this

His present plea of ignorance places all the responsibility upon his friends and must lead to their indictment if the officials charged with the enforcement of our statutes are faithful to their trust.

Serious Concern

"As I stated to you last week, there has seemed to me to be occasion for serious concern in the mind of any thoughtful citizen as to the expenditures in this fast campaign. Some weeks before the primary election the successful nominee stated to me that his friends were planning to advertise in papers through the State in the next two weeks and that measures were being taken in the wastern part of the State which would lead to a very general acquaintance with him by the citizens in that section. It is impossible for me to reconcile these statements with the complete innocence which is now pleads.

"In the course of our conversation"

"As I stated to you last week, there has seemed to me to be accussed to the State House today. The bellef is very general that Mr. Gould could not win the election, due to the apparently united opposition of the Rlan and because of the Governor's appeal to the voters to prevent a duplication of the Pennsylvania and Illinois scandals. If the Secretary of State, who is the sole judge today decides that Mr. Gould has exceeded the $1500 limit, then the nominee's name is automatically removed from the ballot. The Republican State Committee must then meet at once to name a successor. The difficulty arising on this course, is to bring the new nominee's name before the voters in sufficient time.

Queens have sailed oceans before. Nancy has known quite a bit of some. There was that one who got lost and scratched her name in a sea-shell so that when the watchman came to find her he would know that she had gone into the blue fir wood to wait for him.

There was that other one who sailed in a boat with scarlet slik sails across the sea of sapphires that the chief of the fairles melted up in a kettle so the Queen might go somewhere for once without riding in the wooden-wheeled cart drawn by white oxen.

Nancy wondered mildly how she could go about obliging them. Then there was a man who came with a black box and after inviting Nancy to go in and fetch the photograph, sat her down on the steps and per of permits has been granted this year, it is reported at the office of the city building commissioner.

A tremendous amount of wrecking was done to remove more than half a mile of buildings along the south bank of the Chicago River to make a double-decked boulevard there

The volume of wrecking here and the amount of money involved were this year higher than ever, it was stated by a wrecker whose company was credited with having done 90 per cent of the clearing for the new river boulevard. He is I. Waixel, president of the Garden City Wreck-ing Company.

Mr. Waixel describes how wreckers have made use of many modern labor-saving tools and machines to hasten the task of bringing a building down to the ground. Spe and alertness to save all material that may serve anew for some other building are essential elements re-quired of professional wreckers who have organized here, he said.

Recently a company contracted to wreck a building 300 feet in length and 110 feet in width, equivalent in volume to an average 22-story sky-scraper in 55 working days. The job was done in 40 days, Mr. Waixel said. Tile and concrete floors were shat-tered under blows of a 2½-ton weight dropped from a breaker arm.

A considerable portion of material in a building can be used again, if careful wreckers do the work. When tected by a sidewalk shelter and windows are then removed. The roof is stripped. Plumbing and heating equipment is taken out. A chute is built from the top to the bottom of the building, probably made from beams taken from the floors. Great girders are plunged down this chute. Tan and brown furs fashion favors CASHION, who so often chooses just one style or one particular color to favor, opens wide her arms and takes to her fastidious heart all the tans and browns. This time she's really kind in her choice, for there are so many different shades of brown and tan and at least a dozen kinds of furs that you are in the vogue whether you wear a pony coat at $135 or cocoadyed ermine at $1000.

And it's easy to see why tan is favored, since its flattering neutral tones are becoming to nearly everyone and harmonize with practically every other color. And the browns! Is there anything more lovely than the rich warm coloring of beaver and mink or the soft beauty of dyed ermine and squirrel? Then there is the caracul family and calf, muskrat, nutria—all are popular—all in new styles and with lovely trimming—all featured in our fur shop, fifth floor. tured in our fur shop, fifth floor.

square mile, and save for the narrow coastal plain there is scarcely an acre of level land on the entire island. Bohol has a population of 226 to the square mile, Iloilo of 246, and Leyte of 199, the majority of whom are crowded into the southwest coastal plain. The average distribution throughout the islands is 90, and in Mindanao 45 per square mile. The Department of Commerce report on the possibilities for Para rubber production in the Philippines, estimated that of the 84,855 laborers who might be recruited from the 226 to the square mile, Iloilo of 246, and Leyte of 199, the majority of whom are crowded into the southwest coastal plain. The average distribution throughout the islands is 30, and in Mindanao 45 per square mile. The Department of Commerce report on the possibilities for Pararubber production in the Philippines, estimated that of the 84,855 laborers who might be recruited from the northern provinces for work on plantations in the south, 47,982 would come from the Visayas. And this estimate was made upon the basis of relative wages and did not take into account the fact that the drawing off the surplus population from the overcrowded districts imfrom the overcrowded mediately to the north.

These Visayan immigrants naturally retain business and social consituation, Cebu is the natural entre-pot for the new country. Practically every line of steamers running to the northern coast of Mindanao has Cebu home port. The docks are alive with the business which they do. Even the larger vessels plying from Manila to Zamboanga, Cotabato, Davao, and Jolo lose a large proportion of their northbound passengers at their two Visayan ports, Cebu and Dumaguete. All these vessels carry hundreds of Visayan emigrants south every week.

It is partially because of its connection with the growing country to the south that the city of Cebu, the capital of the province of that name and the metropolis of the Visayas, has enjoyed a remarkable develop-ment during the past years. Commer-cial data very clearly revealed this cial data very clearly revealed this growth. In 1914, 2555 vessels with a tonnage of 521,766 tons called at Cebu; in 1923, 6217 vessels of 1,381,-188 tons made the port. In 1914 the foreign exports from the city were valued at 10,840,432 pesos, and the imports at 4,794,260; in 1925 they were 47,486,540, and 15,642,349 pesos, respectively. Since 1924, 10 new firms. American, Greek, Syrian, Japanese and British, have opened offices in Cebu, representing about 20,000,000 pesos of capital. The increase in the representation of Chinese capital in the city has been even greater. During 1924, 132 large buildings, warehouses, stores, offices, or residences of cement or other heavy construction were erected; in 1925, 98; during the first eight months of 1926, 133.

A Distributing Center iness men in Cebu are confideat that this growth rests upon a solid foundation and that it is bound solid foundation and that it is bound to increase in the immediate future. The port is situated in the center of the Visayan Islands and is the logical distributing center for 4,000,000 people who live within a radius of less than 200 miles. It occupies a strategic position in the heart of the hemp and copra producing territory. It is the logical point for the manufacture of coconut oil and cement.

In the past the port of Cebu has en discriminated against in various ys. Spanish laws and custom centered administration, commerce, and the expenditure of public funds in pelago, and this ancient practice it has been difficult to overcome. Until very recently a heavy adverse differential in overseas freight rates artificially handicapped the commerce of Cebu to the advantage of Manila. Through determined action the Cebu Chamber of Commerce secured a basis of relative wages and did not take into account the fact that the most crowded provinces of Luzon are 500 miles removed from Mindanao, while most of the Visayas are within a short and easy sail of its within a short and easy sail of its as intensively cultivated as any in shores. The fact is that the relative the world. The constant and laborithe world. The constant and laboration of Mindanao is irresistibly ous cultivation devoted to these precipitous farms would seem to cast doubt upon the common dictum that no tropical people is capable of sustained industry. With all of their efforts, however, the Cebuaños are compalled to import food annually in compelled to import food annually in large quantities. Their leaders, hownections with their former homes. ever, look forward to a commercial For this reason, and because of its and industrial development which will enable them to pay for still larger food imports, if necessary. Many Small Farmers

Of great social and political sig-nificance is the fact that in Cebu a very large proportion of the arable land is divided up into small parcels which are farmed by the own-ers. In this province there are com-paratively few very rich men, espe-cially outside the city of Cebu, and a relatively large number of peo-ple who might be said to constitute a middle class, I was told by both American and Filipinos that this sit-uation accounted in large part, for the political and social stability which characterize the province. The contrast between Cebu and Negros, which is an island of great sugar haciendas employing thousands of wage earners whose economic and social status is, in many instances, very low, is most striking. The observer senses a difference in the very safe to say that no province in the Philippines possesses a more favor-able economic and social background for the development of democratic political institutions than does Cebu. The city of Cebu is the oldest European settlement in the Philippines. Magellan landed there in 1521 and Magellan landed there in 1521 and was killed shortly afterward in attempting to bring the people of the adjacent island of Mactan under Spanish influence. Forty-four years later Legazpi occupied the town, and for a time it was the center of Spanish activities in the Archipelago. In the city are many historical monuments to those early days. One of them is the oldest street and group of buildings in the Philippines, structures which are still in use. I block of low, thick-walled arcaded buildings, which are still in use. To the south the highway at first follows the palm-lined beach, and then climbs and twists across the mountains to the other side of ling panoramas over land and sea.
The public schools of the island are above the average in quality, and in Cebu is located the junior college of the University of the Philippines.

The Visayans are more immediately interested in this development than is any other powerful group in the Islands. Although they are as loyal to the cause of independent dence as are any Filipinos, they are at present more disposed to co-operate with America in laying solid foundations for an independent nationhood than are the more vocal nationhood than are the more vocal and truculent peoples to the north of them. Gold Nozzles Give Place to China in Producing Filament of Textile Thread

BERLIN (Special Correspondence) -For some time now a factory in Thuringia has been producing in collaboration with the Zelss Optical Works in Jena, porcelain nozzles suitable for artificial-silk spinning YEMEN ENTERS machines. Through these nozzles, which are perforated by a number of holes corresponding to the desired number of filaments in the ultimate thread, the cellulose solution passes into the coagulation medium.

On issuing from the orifices of the submerged nozzles in the form of continuous streams the cellulose reacts with the spinning bath and immediately changes into filaments, which are then twisted to give a useful textile thread. The holes of the nozzles must be most accurately drilled as the quality of the thread depends on their accuracy, while the nozzles themselves must be made of a material which can be submerged h a solution of which sulphuric acid is the main component. Commissioner Lamb Urges More Constructive Help and Less Dole

Special from Monitor Bureau LONDON-"What is morally wrong cannot be economically right; and, conversely, what is morally right ought to be economically sound." Such is the dictum of Commissioner D. Groups consisted, to start with, of 22 families under an experienced foreman, since reduced to groups of 10 and 12. Until the settlers are ready to take over their own blocks they are given a subsistence allowance of 10s per day's work, and after three months are paid by piecework. Up to the end of February, 1926, nearly 10,000 people had been thus established, consisting of 135 groups at a total cost of just over £2,900,000. This group system solves the dimculty of isolation and loneliness of which such dismal stories have been told that mean an advanture has told, that many an adventurer has been prevented from setting out for Commissioner Lamb quotes the instructions of General Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, who said that the flow of Empire migra-tion must ever be determined by the AID AND TRAINING absorbing power of the overseas dominions, and never by the social or economic pressure at home.

CAIRO (Special Correspondence)— Another Parliamentary session is about to begin, when the deputies will have to deal with the serious situation arising out of the fall in the price of Egyptian cotton. Although it was the opinion of many competent judges long before last September that Egypt was in for a period of low cotton prices, this probability had not been appreciated by either the Government or the country generally. In proof of that fact may be mentioned almost the last action of the Minister of Agriculture before the vacation, when he requested and obtained from the Chamber approval of the purchase by the Government of unlimited quantities of cotton. In the country the prevailing cotton prices were algready causing alarm, but most of the growers regarded them as temporary and curable by such means as Government intervention in the market or restrictions on transactions on the Bourse. But since then cotton has fallen to still lower levels, and the

Compared with the prevailing agricultural depression, other factors which might in normal times exercise a considerable influence on the political situation fade into insignificance. The decline in cotton values affects, directly or indirectly, almost every member of the community, but most of all it hits the class upon which the Wafd depends for its political predominance. Throughout the country there is now a feeling of profound disillusionment. It is significant of the altered feeling in the country that in Tanta, the stronghold of xenophobe political and religious sentiment, there is reported to be a marked revulsion of political sympathies. Comparison is being made between conditions of a decade or two decades ago and those prevailing today, with marked disappropriate to the latter. And the a feeling of profound disillusionment.

It is significant of the altered feeling in the country that in Tanta, the stronghold of xenophobe political and religious sentiment, there is reported to be a marked revulsion of political sympathies. Comparison is being made between conditions of a decade or two decades ago and those prevailing today, with marked disadvantage to the latter. And the view, though of course largely unjustified, is widely held that present bad times are a result of the political changes to obtain which the fellaheen have been driven into demonstrating during recent years. Once given grounds for discontent, the Egyptian peasantry finds fault with everything. It is not surprising, therefore, that in present circumstances there should be a strong tendency to compare not only cotton prices of today with those of the post-war boom period, but also conditions of life generally and especially the working of the administrative machine as it affects the tiller of the soil.

On all sides there are complaints of injustice favoritism and work up popular excitement in

In the early days of the fourteenth century, certain scripture rolls and song books were illustrated with rude miniatures, the highest known form of art in that remote period of the Dark Ages. And this new artistic departure was never lost, but uninterrupted and steadily increasing in beauty, it was handed down from generation to generation until its introduction from Rome, its place of origin, to France, and finally to England, where it reached a state of perfection. Boston in Massachusetts can, without dispute, claim the first American-painted miniature, and "They are. I give you that splendid example, Vachel Lindsay:

Gravitating Godward

Written for The Christian Science Monitor

UTSIDE a certain living-room window was a large, wide-apreading tree which the family within loved, partly for its own beauty, but especially because it was the home of two silver-voiced mocking birds. This admiration, however, was not shared by the neighbors on whose ground the tree stood: for one day the family was dismayed to see only a stark trunk and a few blunt branches where all had been feathery green. "How we shall miss its beauty and shade," they sighed; "but worst of all, the birds will not sing there again." The child of the family went close to the window and gazed earnestly upward. There, at the very top, was still a tuft of green. "The birds will come back," he cried exultingly; "they will just go to a higher branch and keep on singing."

The child's prophecy was fulfilled: may direct?

higher branch and keep on singing."

The child's prophecy was fusfilled; and the simple incident brought a helpful lesson. How inclined we are, when there is the slightest sense of unrest in our human experience, to interpret it as an evil omen! How sure we are that it means we are about to lose place, position, supply of good! Human belief has so fixed in our thought the so-called material of good! Human belief has so fixed in our thought the so-called material laws of reaction, gravitation, and so on, that our first impulse is submission to the downward tendency even in our mental attitudes. When the clothes come through the wringer they will be whiter than they have ever been. None of the naphtha or cleansing element has been lost in the boiling process; on the contrary, ment has been confined in the machine and has passed through the clothes continually, as was the soap manufacturer's intention, instead of drifting off into fumes through the laundry. All of the soiled places on collars and cuffs and on children's clothes will be eliminated in this way without rubbing. The small pieces of soap do minutes after the washer is started before they begin to dissolve. AKING baskets has until now been an intricate matter of weaving which required many strands of crepe paper rope as the half the pattern is completed and twork proceeds so that the sides slope then diminish the pattern in the same scale so that perfect diamond-shaped patterns result in the color shaped patterns result in the color

A Circle of Rope

In carrying the different colored threads from one part of the pattern to another, they can be run under and wrapping in such fashion as to the wrapping of the other colors to the place where they are wanted. In as to have enough clothes for a making five different patterns in the month. same basket, it is easiest to thread each color in each pattern on a separate needle. In this way there will be three needles attached to the threads with which each pattern is When the basket is as large as desired, cut off the double strand of crèpe paper over which the sewing is being done, and hide the end of the stitches of the crêpe paper twist. One can fashion any kind of basket or tray, table mat, floor mat or ever picture frame of this new weaving. The material being paper, the article can be made much more durable by giving it, when completed, a coat of shellac or of transparent amber sealing wax dissolved in alcohol and

The trend of fashion in women's seen in the current offerings of curtains and draperies.

The fall showing of window coverings brings again into prominence the lace curtain of other days, but with a difference. The public seems to be unwillings of ruffles or flounces on the severity which for some time has he fullness of rufles or flounces on the severity which for some time has the skirts of dresses is also being marked window dressing, so that the new curtains retain simplicity of line while they add the softening touch of a lace ruffle across the

The new curtains reach just below the window sill and the newest draperies match them in length. The idea of ruffles on the lace curtains is further carried out by the valance. The pleated valance is disappearing in favor of the one which is ruffled.

The width of the ruffle depends upon the room and the taste of the woman who plans it. Sometimes ruffes are 18 inches wide; more often their width is about 6 inches. The ruffle on the curtain and that on the valance must correspond.

With the return of laces to greater popularity, draperies are losing their laborate designs and more plain materials are appearing.

The respect in which the modern housewife holds her time probably has something to do with the new curtain fabrics, for the most popular ones are the sort that can be tubbed and ironed without the fedious was and ironed without the tedious use of stretchers. Figured nets sometimes with the figure woven in color are among the popular materials which are easily washed.

Packing a Hatbox

The writer has found it possible so to pack a hatbox of medium size

In it she can place three hats, five dresses, several pairs of stockings, a light-weight coat, handkerchiefs, clothes brush and fewelry. She clothes brush and fewelry. She places the hats in the center, then she lays the dresses on the bed, stacks them in an orderly way lays a roll of tissue paper along the length of the frocks and rolls them upon it. Then she curls this bundle around the hats.

How to make 3 pairs of stockings out of 2

Often you discard a pair of hose with only one stocking worn out. This waste can be stopped with Rollins Improved Double Runstop hosiery. This exclusive feature insures longer wear and identifies the hosiery that keeps its color after indefinite washings.

Buy two pairs of the same color of Rollins-save the good stocking of each and they will make you a third pair—giving you one pair free. Only Rollins has this Runstop feature and only hosiery that keeps its color as Rollins does can give you this extra pair.

Sold only by reliable merchants — never by house to-house canvassers. Send coupon for free Color Chart and name of nearest Rollins dealer. ROLLINS HOSIERY MILLS, DES MOINES, IOWA

The other Runstop, at the hem, never shows even with the shortest skirt. It is always a dainty red dotted line which positively identifies Rollins Improved Double Runstop ho-siery and stops all garter runs.

Both Runstops protect those wearing round garters from runs caused by pulling at the tops with sharp finger nails.

SET TESTER IS SOLUTION OF RADIO LOGGING

Any Desired Wavelength Is Obtainable With Miniature Transmitter

Once in a long while there is placed on the radio market a device which shows a great deal of possibility as an adjunct to Mr. Radiocast Listener's equipment and which is inexpensive. Such an item is the Superunit Tester which has been recently announced by Allan T. Hans-com of Woonsocket, R. I. Mr. Hans-com is just enough of a radio en-gineer to have perfected a second harmonic superheterodyne kit which worked when most straight kits were not any too good. To those "in the know" this should be sufficient ap-

Now that the "supers" have ceased to hold the center of the radio stage, Mr. Hanscom has turned his energies in other directions and several R. F. kits and this set tester are among his results. He has also perfected a phonograph radio pick-up device which is going into the making of another story to be released soon.

We might say that this so-called et tester deserves a better name. It is really a wavemeter transmitting a distinctive note on any wavelength distinctive note on any wavelength that the operator may choose merely by turning a calibrated dial. This unit is just plugged into an electric light connection and it starts working. A carrier wave is generated which carries quite a distance in the house. Since the device is operated by A. C., the hum which we have tried to eliminate in most radio devices is used to modulate the carrier giving it a distinctive tone. Test Gives Set Range

A single dial controls the wavelength one transmits. It is calibrated and the calibrations read quite accurately in our tests. We used it the evening we were testing David Grimes's new set and had a lot of fun with it. First we decided to determine the wavelength range of the set so we set the Superunit Tester at 200 meters and turning the dials the set downward suddenly turned right onto the tester note. The dials read three. Then we swung the tester up to 545 meters and following along with the set dials logging this point at 98.

So far so good. We then tuned in some stations. Having these stations as clearly as possible we would then swing the tester dial until the center of the steady note was right on the station wavelength. Of course the tester note would obliterate the station. Then we would turn off the tester and find out what its dial read in meters. With a meter log we were able to narrow down our station possibilities to a few and it made the determining of the call letter easy. We saved a great deal of time in log-ging the set by this method. Then we tried it from another viewpoint. We tuned the tester to WJZ's wavelength, 455 meters, and tester note was strongest. Turning off the tester we heard an orchestra coming through with tremendous volume. Ah, ha! we thought. The ester is not so accurate. That is our local station WNAC which transmits on 430 meters. We sat back and waited. The selection ended and then came the familiar announcer's voice. This is station WJZ." We were sold then on both the receiver and the

Logging Balanced Sets

With these days of well-balanced "golden rule" sets that will not oscillate and spoil the neighbors' reception, the logging of distant stations is quite difficult. With a regenerative type of set the carrier whistle may be heard and a distant station brought ets only the station is heard and that takes some hunting when more than one dial is used.

With the Hanscom Tester the wave length of the station you want is found on the tester dial and this is turned to the indicator on the tester panel. Then the set is tuned to the tion as easy as tuning in a good local station. Then the tester is cut off Nazer's orchestra. 7—Rosetta Jones and a little moving over usually less than one degree of the dials from the point you have struck will bring in distant station if it is on and it, weather conditions permitting. The device sells for $10 and we had nearly that much fun with it the first pight we used it. Of course anyone could build one of these but when it comes build one of these but when it comes to the workmanship, design and trouble of making a neat calibrated dial; the cost in time if not money will usually exceed the list price of this price of this price of the cost in time if not money will usually exceed the list price of this pri us affair. For neutralization ingenious affair. For interest it works out perfectly.

BOMBAY HOUSE ADMITS WOMEN

Indian Legislature Has Removed Ban on Woman Membership

BOMBAY (Special Correspondence)

—The Indian Legislative Assembly
has removed the ban on women becoming members of that body. By taking this forward step in the emancipation of women and placing them on an equal basis with men, the lower House of the Central Legislature has come in line with the Bom-bay and Madras Councils, which enfranchised women some months ago. N. M. Dumasia, who moved that the existing disqualification to the adnission of women as members of the Assembly be removed, said he was gratified to find that in a country where men were accused of treating women as chattels, the political prog-ress of women had been more rapid than in England.

Women, he continued, had distin-guished themselves in many walks of life. There was not the remotest justification for the contention that men were more intellectual than women. The exclusion of women from the Assembly was a reflection upon the electors themselves. Women were supreme in domestic government, and domestic government was the best preparation for democratic govern ment. The Assembly could not be representative, and could not protect the interests of women effectively unless they had for their collaboraunless they had for their collabora-tors in the House a few of the best and ablest women in the country. Laws were made which affected women seriously and the voice of women in framing such laws was es-sential. He believed the emancipa-tion of women accelerated the peo-ple's progress toward Swaraj (self-government).

Maulvi Mahomad Yakub, Muhammadan, strongly opposed the resolu-tion. He did not, he said, think that any useful purpose would be served by removing this disqualification. Weither the women nor the country

Neither the women nor the country would benefit.

Mr. Haig, Joint Home Secretary, explained that Government members would not vote on the subject, but official members would be free to vote as they liked. If the House accepted this resolution, it would enable women in Bombay and Madras alone to stand for election, for other provinces had not yet enfranchised women. The Government could, however, nominate a woman member of the House from any part of India.

Sir Hari Sing Gour finally supported the resolution wholeheartedly, and when put to the vote it was carried with acclamation.

Annapolis and West Point Undergraduates Hold Dress Parade in Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (P)—Chicago, far from the sea coast, where invaders might be expected to appear first, will furnish a battleground for two combatants—the Army and Navy—who have moved onto the battle area prepared for the annual service conflict on Soldiers Field tomorrow.

"Commodors" W. A. Ingram of the Blue—the United States Naval Academy—firmly entrenched his sea-going football army at a hotel and then tested the Navy football guns, big and small, on the battlefield.

"General" L. W. Jones, guiding genius of the United States Military Academy grid warriors also wheeled his mobile forces into position, captured the South Shore Country Club and established headquarters there. And Chicago, enguifed by a tidal wave of cadets, midshipmen, men of state and thrill seekers from throughout the nation, found itself the happy host to one of the most colorful throngs in its history.

one of the most colorful throngs in its history.

Finging ajar the gates of its hospitality, the city began two days of festivities attendant upon the first service football game ever played inside the Atlantic seaboard. In the wake of the two football squads, the student bodies of the two academies poured into Chicago today on 13 special trains, while the city rocked in tribute.

The cadets and midshipmen gave the city a foretaste this afternoon of tomorrow's spectacle when they marched into Soldiers Field for dress parade preceding dedication of the $10,000,000 municipal stadium.

The dedicatory ceremonies today were the climax of the first day's events. Vice-President Charles G. Dawes made the principal address at the stadium, before a throng which mounted to upward of 75,000 persons. An historical pageant preceded the dedication.

Plate's were set for more than three thousand guests at a luncheon given by Marshall Field and Company to the students of the Military Academy. Both student bodies were guests of the Union League Club at a reception following the stadium dedication.

Rodden Resigns as Toronto Manager

Special to The Christian Science Monitor J. RODDEN has resigned as M. manager and coach of the Toronto St. Patrick hockey team in the lational Hockey League. His action came after a meeting of the players and the owners. No announcement has been made as yet on who will succeed Rodden. Rodden was signed to coach and manage the St. Patricks late last spring and handled the team in only two games.

PLAYERS LEFT

Finnegan, Clancy, for Ottawa. Referee—W. Bell, Montreal. Time—Three 20m. periods and 20m. overtime. The Montreal of the New York. Americans, who lost to both Ottawa and Canadiens on their present Canadian trip, defeated the World Champion Montreal Maroons here last nigh, 4 to 1, in a strenuous game which was easily the most exciting of the season. Right from the start play was of the speedy variety, and Burch, at center for the winners, was the star of the game, his stick handling and passing had the local defense baffied all through the game, and, while he scored only one goal, he assisted in two others and also forced Benedict to make a number of spectacular saves.

Forbes, the winners' custodian, also had a busy time, but with the exception of one occasion he turned aside all the Maroons' efforts. The Americans scored in the last minute of the first period, but Stewart counted early in the second for the Maroons. Burch and Green-raised the New York total to three before the end of the period, and in the last session Langlois made the result certain. The winners showed mid-season form, and had a decided edge on the champions on the play.

CANADIAN-AMERICAN HOCKEY LEAGUE STANDING

The Boston Tigers and Springfield Indians played 80 minutes of strenuous hockey at the Boston Arena last night to a tie score of 2—2 in the pening game of the new Canadian-American Hockey League. The team play was ragged, but great possibilities of some stirring games in the future were in evidence.

The visitors overwhelmed the locals with their speed, but their shooting was far off form and wide of the nets. The goalies, Cox for Springfield and Rheaume of Boston, were superb in their duties, each making a number of brilliant and spectacular saves.

The locals jumped the Indians in the opening session and big Aubrey Clapper, one of the outstanding players on the ice, captured a puck lost by Litzen, and shot it by Cox. In the second period Lloyd, Melrose High School player last year, split the Indian defense to score unassisted, although Wedgewood followed the play as a threat.

Kadak Park Team Wins One of a trio of replays, necessitated through drawn games of the previous week, was finished without disorder in the northwestern New York territory where the Kodak Park Football Club of Rochester defeated the MacNaughton Rangers Football Club of the same ton Rangers Football Club of the same city by the score of 3 goals to 1. The Kodak Park team went into the lead when Baird, center forward, scored in the opening period and the same player further increased the lead shortly after half time. The Rangers then became aggressive and managed to cross the winners' line for one goal, but the Park's defense tightened and held until the final whistle. Just before the end of the game the Kodak representatives registered their third goal.

In another scheduled replay, the Altoona Works Soccer Club of Altoona, Pa., falled to put in an appearance and did not advise its opponent—the Pittsburgh—of their inability to field eleven players until one hour prior to the scheduled kick off time. A peculiarity of this mix-up is the fact that the visiting club would have been forced to be en route at least two hours in advance of the starting time in order to negotiate the intervening 100 miles between Altoona and Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh team had made elaborate preparations and anticipated one of the largest crowds of the season, many of whom, according to reports, were on hand but were disappointed because of the failure of Altoona to field a team.

At half time the Galicia booters apparently were unconcerned when leading by 2 goals to 0, but after the restart however, the Viking eleven caused its opposing backfield no end of trouble and scored three goals which ultimately proved to be the final score. After the third goal the unsportsmanlike element, which is found among the Spanish club's following, began to make itself felt and after one of the decisions of Referee McCabe rushed upon the field. Although the ball had been sent out of play by striking the chest of a Galicia player and the arbiter rightly ordered a bye kick, the crowd intimidated the official into awarding a corner kick.

Providence Institute Loses Claim to Eastern Football Championship Title

Another undefeated team was forced to see its claims on the Eastern championship destroyed when Brown University was held to a 10-to-10 tie by Colgate University, a team which had previously been defeated this fall. The outcome was a disappointment to the followers of Brown, who had seen their team defeat Yale, Dartmouth and Harvard on successive Saturdays, It was a hard-fought battle from beginning to end. Colgate took the lead with a field goal by R. T. Williamson '27 in the first period. Brown went ahead in the third with a touchdown, point after and field goal, all by David Mishel '27. Irregularity in General Stock Market List-Some Good Gains

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (P)-Stock rices displayed a firm tone at the sening of today's market.

Thanksgiving Day holiday to influence the price movement, operators for the rise resumed their campaign by bidding up special stocks.

Gains of a point or so were recorded by Commercial Solvents B, American International Corporation, while General Motors, Allied Chemical and other industrial favorites improved fractionally.

industrial favorites improved fractionally.

While there was some speculative disappointment over the failure to decrease the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate no fears were entertained over the credit situation which continues relatively easy.

Buying, however, was again of a selective character, centering largely in issues in which special developments are believed to be pending. Mack Trucks, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Marine preferred and Montana Power were quickly bid up 2 points or more, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit crossed 71 to a new peak, and Union Carbide duplicated the year's high on buying presumably influenced by the higher dividend.

Texas Land Trust, which is traded in infrequently in odd lots, jumped 42 points. Worthington Pump preferred A broke 5 points to a new low at 44 in reflection of the recent omission of the dividend.

Warner Pictures A dropped 3½ points, and Savage Arms 3.

Foreign exchanges opened firm, with a jump of more than 10 points in French francs to around 3.62c as the outstanding feature. The rise in French currency reflected the sharp decrease in the note circulation of the Bank of France.

France.

Speculative buying and squeezing of the short interest built up in Baldwin Locomotive as a result of the frequent official denials of the disposition of the company's valuable real estate heldings caused a rapid climb in the price to 155%, within striking distance of the record figure for all time of 1564.

Considerable headway was also made by many other stocks, with gains of 3 to 4 points occurring in General Asphalt, Loose-Wiles Bischit, Jersey Central and Devoe & Reynolds. Texas Land Trust sold at 1020, increasing its gain to 90 points.

The renewal rate on call loans was unchanged at 4½ per cent.

Bonds Are Dail

Bond trading moved at a slower pace today following the holiday interruption, bu the main trend of prices seemed to be upward.

Investment buying again centered on the highest grade securities, lifting several of the United States Treasury issues to new top prices. Liberty Bonds withstood profit-taking well, while the Treasury 4½s sold near 110.

Speculative activities were noticeable in such bonds as Interborough Rapid Transit and other focal traction issues, as well as International Merchantile Marine 6s, which rallied more than a point. Copy or and sugar issues were moderately active.

French and Belgian obligations headed an advance in the foreign division, with the new Yokohama 6s also showing a slight gain.

Heavy Volume of New Financing Likely Soon -Issues on Exchange Rising

Bond salssmen who consider that they wanted a week's time while the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey offering was the sole topic of discussion in bond market circles, may take comfort in the thought that a big bond business is ahead.

Since the Standard Oil bonds will be offered first to preferred shareholders, whose stock will be accepted in payment at 11s flat on Dec. 15, it is thought hardly likely that there will be any public offering at all. Plenty of other financing is in the offins, however, to permit dealers to round out their lists with a wide variety of offerings.

As indicating the volume of business, the following partial list of borrowers and amounts pending is given. In some cases the loans are mattern of rumor; one is a current offering. The list is as follows:

leading railroads have begun an extensive construction program in Texas which will eventually bring them into the market for money.

Stimulated by continued easy money, bond prices moved again into new high ground recently.

With business prosperous but prudently handled on the whole throughout the country, with the income of the American people at a high level and generally managed without extravagine, with commodity prices stable and with money rates easy, the stage is certainly set for a continued good bond market.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

cHicago, Nov. 26 (Special)—The tendency of consumers of finished sized to work off their already low inventories is so marked as to make it a major market factor. The outlook, according to producers, is that stocks in the hands of consumers on Dec. 31 will be at a record low point.

This condition connotes confidence, that steel will be in free supply in the first quarter, and that prices will be no higher, an appraisal to which producers themselves can subscribe. Consumption has not dropped off to the extent buying has, as evidenced by the fact shipments exceed orders. Many orders placed this week have been designated for delivery in the first week of January.

Efforts to bring in first quarter business at current levels have met with indifferent success. Inland Steel Company has announced continuation of the present 2.10 cent price on plates, shapes and bars for first quarter, and other makers are expected to follow. Whatever influence the tight fuel situation had has disappeared, and the buyers' market is emphasized.

Specifications for practically all of the finished lines have declined moderately, and a 75 per cent steel lingot rate prevails. The United States Steel Corporation subsidiary is operating at a better rate than the independent

Bradstreet's summary of local business conditions says:

A fair volume of business is reported in the wholesale and jobbing dry goods trade. Dealers in dress and slik goods report business somewhat quiet. Business in millinery lines is fair.

Wholesale shoe dealers are handling a moderate amount of business. The retail trade holds to former weeks with not much improvement.

Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Steamship Lines for the nine months ended Sept. 30 reports surplus of $313.426 after depreciation, taxes and other charges, equal to $2.28 a share on 137.429 shares of 5 per cent preferred, compared with $1.682,777, or $5.85 a share on 199.512 no-par common shares, after preferred dividends, in the first nine months of 1925. Thirdquarter surplus was $181.667 after above charges, equal to four cents a share on common, compared with $261.843, or 45 cents, in the preceding quarter, and surplus of $570.846 or $2 a share in third quarter of 1925.

MAINE CENTRAL SURPLUS
PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 26 (P)—A surplus after charges of $1.077,104 during the first 10 months of 1926 was reported by the Maine Central Railroad. The surplus increased by $135,785 over the surplus reported for the like period last year. Heavy potato shipments in October were said to have been a factor in the improved showing. Net operating revenues for 10 months were $17,082,599, as compared with $16,890,827 up to Nov. 1, 1925.

BRADFORD, Nov. 26—Consumption is increasing and this will become more marked as coal gets plentiful—All grades of tops are very firm. Production of medium sorts is sold forward to January and February. Yarn contracts are being taken up satisfactorily and new orders are coming through for both hosiery and weaving yarns on home and German account.

WAMSUTTA MILLS PROFIT In its fiscal year to Sept. 20, 1926, Wamsutta Mills of New Bedford earned a profit after operating expenses and depreciation of $145,025, compared with a profit of $387,149 in the 1925 and $688 in the 1924 fiscal periods. On outstanding 60,000 was a periods. shares, the 1925 net was equal CHICAGO, Nov. 26—Real Silk Hosiery Mills, Inc., sales in the week ended Nov. 20 were the largest in the company's history, being 36 per cent in excess of the similar week a year ago and 26 per cent ahead of the week ended Nov. 13, which had been the previous record week.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26—Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania directors authorized expenditure of $345,325 for additions to plants, making a total of $13,708,044 authorized for this purpose since the beginning of the year.

With the blowing out of another stack at South Chicago, 24 out of 36 steel stacks in this district are active. It is not believed that the decline will be checked until the turn of the year.

Car building prospects have improved, with the Illinois Central Railroad understood framing an 3000 to 9000 car program, requiring nearly 100,000 tons of finished material. The Chicago & Northwestern is to build 500 cars in its own shops, and the Pullman Car & Manufacturing, Corporation will build 201 refrigerator cars for the Northern Refrigerator Car Company. The General American Tank Car Corporation has been awarded 500 cars by the American Refrigerator Transit Company. The material in these three orders total 12,000 tons.

The upturn in iron and steel scrap of a few days ago proved abortive, and apparently does not presage immediate improvement in the general markets. Buying of pig iron in the recent moving accounted for about 70 per cent of the first quarter requirements, but the remaining tonnage, will be slow in being placed.

In every department the iron and steel industry is listless. Steel prices have not been tested, owing to the aloofness of consumers, but every condition points to growing weakness. Pig iron, too, may feel the effects of the softer condition of the Eastern markets. Billy Bear Goes to Bed

ITTLE Billy Bear waddled without worry through the wild woodland, where most of the green leaves that had been on the trees all summer had dried up, and turned yellow and red and pink and purple and other colors, and been blown off the trees by the wind, so that his feet stirred them and made a pleasant, rustly noise.

Through the wild woodland blow

"Helio, Billy Bear," said Robert Rabbit, but before he could speak he had to stop and yawn.
"Hello, Robert Rabbit," said Billy Bear, after he had finished his yawn.

"Excuse me for yawning, but I am getting sleepy, and that's the truth. Just look at that pond, Robert Rabbit."

"Beatrice Bee showed me a fine place," said Billy Bear, yawning again. "I'm going there right now, Robert Rabbit. If you'll come along I'll show you what a fine place it is."

So little Billy Bear waddled without worry away from the pond and into the wild woodland, and Robert land.

"Good night, Robert Rabbit," said Billy Bear," said Robert Rabbit, waving his paw.

And then Billy Bear's head went into the hole, and there was nothing left to see but the hole, and Robert Rabbit went away hoppity-hop, hoppity-hop through the wild woodland.

By FRANKLIN SNOW

PARTICIPATION by several rail-roads in the "See America First" exhibition in New York recently indicates the efforts being made by the carriers to regain, in part, the lost passenger business. In the last veyears, passenger earnings have decreased approximately 20 per cent, while the actual number of passengers arried has shown an even greater slump, the fact that the loss has been more largely among the short-distance travelers explaining the difference in the relative statistics.

Although the railroads ascribe the reduced volume of passenger travel almost entirely to the automobile-either the private car or the motor-bus—it is a fact that the transatiantic steamship lines have taken away an appreciable amount of vacation travel from the railroads. This has been effected by the "tourist third cabin" rates, the "Filene plan" and other methods of providing European trips at small cost. With the exception of the reduced-rate round-trip tickets to California and other parts of the West arranged by the roads west of Chicago, the carriers have been unwilling to arrange tours which compare with those offered by the steamship lines.

The "See America First" group is seeking "to promote or bring about a worn lines by the competition."

The "See America First" group is seeking "to promote or bring about a more general use of the slogan" and "to fix permanently in the public thought of the people of America, the idea of traveling and seeing their own country first." Hotels, motor associations, aerial organizations, as well as rallroads, are interested in the development of this plan.

New Ticket Offices

In line with the efforts to counteract the effects of notor competition, a number of railroads are establishing their "off-line" as well as local city ticket offices on ground floor locations of leading thoroughfares. In New York, the Canadian Nationals placed an office on Fifth Avenue at Forty-second Street and its business increased tenfold.

The Great Northern followed suit with a ground floor office on the same street, while the Northern Pacific has creased tenfold.

The Great Northern followed suit with a ground floor office on the same street, while the Northern Pacific has purchased a building at Fifth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street which is to have a large ground-floor ticket office. The new type ticket offices resemble hotel lobbies in their appointments. The "counter" is absent and the passenger sits at the ticket seller's desk. open the window The steam locomotive, rather than electricity, will continue to be the dominant factor in the development of rail transportation, L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson Com-

The "counter" is absent and the passenger sits at the ticket seller's desk.

Ground Floor Sites

In Chicago, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul is preparing what is said to be the most complete ticket office of any road, on a busy corner. The Baitmore & Ohio has established three such offices in New York and Brooklyn, used in part as waiting sooms for its "train connection." Other roads have moved to better locations recently, those which have invaded Fifth Avenue, New York, including "the Santa Fe, Milwaukee, Union Pacific, Chicago & Northwestern, and Southern Pacific, all these being located on "second floor fronts" of buildings.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has a large ground floor offices in New York, centrally located, while the Atlantic Coast Line in Washington and the Canadian roads' offices in several American cities are other instances of the business strategy displayed in the selection of ticket-office sites.

The "Milwaukee"

With the incorporation of the reor-

ployee.
Such a performance, he declared, would have been impossible without the modern steam locomotive. The freight car, he said, had increased in the business strategy displayed in the selection of ticket-office sites.

The "Milwaukee"

With the incorporation of the reorganized Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway under the name, "Chicago, Milwaukee & Pacific," the difference in nomenclature between Wall Street and Main Street will disappear. Financial men have always referred to the road as the "St. Paul," just as they term the Atchison, "or "Atch."

The public, especially in the West, and railroad men, has always known the former as the "Milwaukee" and the latter as the "Santa Fe." With the elimination of the "St. Paul," from its official title the C. M. & St. P. will doubties be universally known as "the Milwaukee."

Improvements Buring Receivership during the last year and the former president, H. E. Byram, has been called to the witness stand repeatedly to testify concerning the causes for the bankruptcy, several important improvements have been effected.

Among the progressive steps taken are the development of roller hearings.

Among the progressive steps taken are the development of roller bearings for passenger cars, searchlights operated from the observation platforms, "musical" locomotive whistles, a new entrance to the Yellowstone Park known as "Gallatin Gateway," will be extended to Ft. Myers.

Just eight years ago this month a fine enthu-siasm came to the world. Who does not remember those glorious days when, the battle done, everybody talked of the splendid future that was opening out? Every country shared these sentiments, but it was perhaps in Paris that the masses were most deeply touched, for it was in Paris that the war had been most felt, and the conscience of the people was aroused.

Eight Years of Comfort

It is true that the rulers did not altogether share these ideals, and they sufficiently expressed a skepticism which sometimes resembled cynicism. Yet generally the language of good will, of humanity, of international justice, of perpetual peace, was spoken; and it was believed that the clouds of objections, of difficulties, of prejudices of an outmoded diplomacy, would be dissipated. When the Peace Conference was opened, M. Poincaré made the presidential address. "You will," he said, "seek nothing but justice-justice that has no favorites-justice in territorial problems, justice in financial problems, justice in economic problems." And he

The time is no more when diplomatists could meet to redraw with authority the map of the empires on a corner of a table. If you are to remake the map of the world, it is in the name of the peoples, and on condition that you shall faithfully interpret their thoughts, and respect the rights of nations, great and small.

The map of the world was redrawn, for better or for worse. It is indeed open to criticism, and everybody admits the necessity of readjustments. Financial and economic problems are yet with us, and although considerable advance has been made, it is certain that reparations and debts, production and protection, will have to be discussed in more serried fashion. The universal friendship which was envisaged has not been achieved, and there have been, in the long process of peace-making which is not yet ended,

Because the early enthusiasm has diminished, because it has not yet fructified as much as one would wish, there are people who talk of failure, and who permit themselves to experience disappointment. They are altogether mistaken. If everything that was sought has not been obtained, there is still no reason for disillusionment. A goal of perfectibility was set up. We should not complain that it has not been reached. We should not contrast the conditions of the world with the hopes of 1918. We should rather compare them with the prewar years which ended in the collapse of 1914. To judge by the standard which we created would be discouraging, but to consider the unquestionable progress that has been made, and the lessons that mankind has indubitably taken to heart, is encouraging.

That we expected too much may be true, but it is already to our credit that we had such expectations. To despair because we have as yet only moved halfway is to disregard the human tendency which is contained in the popular phrase that Rome was not built in a day. Perhaps there was no single moment which separated the old from the new. Perhaps we cannot declare that on one side of a certain date 'Armageddon raged, and on the other side the millennium was attained. But we can say that we began a slow and sometimes painful task on task with more success than might have been imagined during the strife.

If the last eight years have not been as gratifying as we desired, the last ten years have taken us beyond our brightest dreams. It was wrong to suppose that peace and friendship and prosperity could automatically come out of a devastating war. On the contrary, what came out of the war was the need of a total revision of our conceptions, and the need of continuous unfaltering efforts. The work that faced us was that of repairing, not of enjoying. Europe in particular had to undo things that it had spent centuries in doing.

It would have been surprising had recovery been immediate. Bitterness could not be effaced, industry could not be reconstructed, finances could not be righted, new nationalities could not settle down, the higher aspirations represented by the League of Nations could not be fulfilled, in the twinkling of an eye. We must remember that a duty was imposed upon the world, and that duty the world must go on performing. Mistakes were made by generations, and for those mistakes other generations must pay in the shape of a gradual and often arduous carrying out of a resolve not to commit them again. This will remain a constant check on folly.

Whatever the debit and credit account may show eight years after, it can scarcely be denied that gradually Europe is straightening its affairs, and that gradually the will-to-peace is being strengthened. Betterment must not be regarded, in diplomatic and economic affairs, as a heritage. It must rather be regarded as a task, to which we must set our shoulders, and hard though it may be, it should be undertaken with alacrity and a deep pleasure in the consciousness that it is a task worthy of all our energy and effort. Looked at in this light, those eight years are eight years of comfort.

Assuming that the action taken by the colonial representatives who are members of the

British Dominions Limit Immigration

Imperial Conference in deciding to adopt for the British Dominions the American plan of limiting and scrutinizing immigrants from European countries is final, it would appear that the application of the rule must hereafter gradually tend, not only to reduce European emigration, but to insure more rapid and probably more permanent development in Britain's far-flung colonial possessions. It would seem also to establish, beyond the possibility of future controversy, the right of any nation or group of nations to apply the rule of selectivity in determining who are and who are not deemed desirable additions to the body politic or to the industrial and economic structure which it is sought to build up and maintain.

It appears that Canada, Australia and New Zealand were the first of the dominions to realize the necessity of protecting themselves against what they regard as an invasion by undesirables. Heretofore the only passport required by an emigrant was one showing that he was unable to find employment in the mother country. More recently it was found advisable to require of the newcomers that they bring with them a small working capital and that they be qualified to perform the kind of service needed by the dominion to which they were emigrating. It is upon this basis that the agreement reported has been reached.

Even before the formal action of the Imperial Conference was announced Canada was negotiating an agreement with the British Government for the transportation of immigrants at an extremely low cost, but with the proviso that they must be agricultural workers or domestic servants. The home Government is said to have held out for a similar migration of unemployed industrial workers, but this Canada declined to concede. In the assertion of the right insisted upon by the dominion premiers, and in their apparent ability to establish colonial preferences even when these conflict with the aims and purposes of the central Government, there is seen a new and perhaps an extremely important factor in world affairs. It is an assertion of a measure of independence which in former years would not have been condoned. It marks a definite stage of progressive thought in the realization of that national autonomy without which growth and development must be re-

The processes evolved by mankind's advancing civilization have become, especially in the last decade, so intensive that they require the greatest possible efficiency at every point, as well as the elimination of waste. The prairie awaiting the transformation which will change it into a wheat field does not need, primarily, a tailor, a shoemaker or a coal miner. There will be places for some of these eventually, but they cannot qualify as pioneers. With varied industries to be developed, it was not discovered in the United States for many years that the proper industrial balance could be maintained only by resorting to selective methods. While the American formula is based, in establishing its quotas, upon somewhat less intimate or personal considerations than that adopted by the dominions, the end sought may be much the same in both cases. The assumed right to determine the desirability or undesirability of a prospective immigrant provides an effective bar, no matter what the particular mode employed.

There will be in the present instance, as there was when the United States decided to limit immigration, the contention that the people of the newer countries, where opportunuity is almost unlimited, are closing the door of hope against those less fortunate. But the operation of any rule should be studied and its fairness judged from its practical, rather than from its theoretical application. It would be no kindness to one unfitted for the service needed to transport him to a new country. Hundreds of thousands of unassimilated aliens are today crowded into the slum districts of the larger American cities, their condition being but little if any better than before they started out on their quest for the land of opportunity. They have proved themselves to be misfits because they were not ready or not willing to render service along the

A writer in the current Harpers Magazine discusses at some length the social results of

"Big Business on Trial"

"Big Business." By that phrase he means the great combinations, under centralized control. of productive and distributive industries long conducted under private direction in innumerable small workshops and stores. He notes chain stores, mail order houses, department stores, and the distribution through what is known as "national advertising" of the output of factories, as essential features

He enumerates the apparent advantages such as economy in buying in great quantities, the elimination of competition, efficiency in centralized management, the stabilization of prices, and the financial saving accruing from the control of sufficient capital. The array of apparent advantages is formidable. Yet a certain hesitation to accept them as positive and final must be aroused by the consideration of two facts of such general public notoriety as only to need statement.

1. During the period which has witnessed the most rapid development of big business in the United States the cost of living has steadily increased.

2. The cost of living is generally less in those European countries in which big business is practically unknown, and trade and production still remain in the hands of individuals rather than in the control of nation-wide corporations.

Perhaps it is still too soon to reach a conclusion as to the social value of the great concentration of interest in almost every branch of commerce and production in the United States. But the rapid multiplication of the "chain stores" for purveying food and household supplies has awakened many doubts in the thoughts of housewives, who understand domestic, if not political economy.

These stores have eliminated many expenses of management incurred by the erstwhile grocer or marketman. They sell rigidly for cash, doing away with losses from bad debts, and with much of the old-time bookkeeping. They do little advertising and no soliciting. Their motto is, "Cash and Carry," so that the former grocer's wagon with the cheery driver soliciting orders in the morning has vanished from the domestic

Add to this the fact that, buying through a central agency in huge quantities, they should get the lowest prices, that their ample capital permits them to discount all bills, and that their wide distribution geographically enables them to avoid local gluts of perishable food, and it would seem that they should have materially reduced the cost of food and household necessities.

Nevertheless, most housewives will insist that no such result is apparent. Certainly, it does not appear in the estimates of the cost of living in which the prices of chain stores must materially enter. Nor does it appear that in those benighted communities as yet not invaded by the chain stores prices are appreciably higher.

It is, of course, possible that the tendency to a more rapid appreciation in the prices of necessaries may have been checked in part by these activities of big business. That remains to be investigated. But a long chapter in economic history might be made up of the story of the trade combinations which have been launched with the bright promise of a reduction of prices, only to result in their in-

Perhaps it is too much to ask that all the fruits of economy in production and the reduced cost of distribution should be enjoyed by that hapless individual, the ultimate consumer. But as yet it remains to be proved that he even gets a share of them.

waterwaysimprovements in the United States, have reason to rejoice that they have at last received assurance that the Administration in Washington stands committed to the completion, within a period of five years, of all navigable channels provided for in projects covering more than 12,000 miles of river highways in the Mississippi Valley. The extent of the undertaking may be better realized when it is understood that the necessary work will call for appropriations of $120,000,000 in addition to funds already provided.

In a letter addressed to the Mississippi Valley Association, recently in session in St. Louis, President Coolidge stated that in his forthcoming message to Congress he will stress the importance of the development of the Mississippi basin for transportation purposes, and that he will recommend an appropriation by Congress at the pending session of $10,000,000 for carrying on the work. Confirmation of the Administration policy was supplied by Secretary Hoover, who in an address to the association outlined a broad plan of inland waterways development.

The unequivocal and spontaneous indorsement of this project by the authorized spokes-men for the Federal Government may be regarded as a great victory for those who have labored for years, often against strong popular sentiment, to establish the reasonableness and soundness of their plan. Rival transportation systems, in the beginning, marshaled all their forces in opposition to any plan which would encourage competition. But many changes have taken place as a result of the industrial development of the middle West and the South. It has been discovered that the fullest measure of prosperity in those sections cannot be realized unless cheaper means of transportation than that offered by the rail carriers is provided for many of the commodities which seek the sea from the

That, perhaps more than any other single factor, has been the deciding consideration in what appears to be a reversal of public sentiment once opposed to the inland waterways project. It has been shown, meanwhile, that it is possible, even with the scanty provision which has been made for improving the main river freight both to and from the Gulf. It is not an extravagant claim that with the full utilization of the natural routes which have been provided. much of the grain from the western wheat belt will find its way to the sea via St. Paul and New

In at least one place in the world youth and good looks are not at a premium any longer, it appears, for the school board of Trail, B. C., has announced that henceforth these will constitute a bar to engagement in the filling of vacancies on the teaching staff. It came about in this way: No less than eight attractive young ladies have been married in a short time after coming to Trail, having been claimed by as many eligible bachelors employed in the great smelting industry of the Consolidated Mining Company in that region. Hence the board has decided that from now on it will rule in favor of teachers who will be less likely to marry. Members of the board, however, have been forced to acknowledge that they have no complaint against the pretty appointees on the ground of competency, as the pupils under their tuition made good progress. But just the same they can't have the jobs as teachers in Trail!

The Northwestern Lutheran recently published an interesting item telling that a doctor some time previously had prescribed prayer before meals as an aid to digestion. It added that he did so purely as a doctor who believes that, by breaking the chain of thought that binds us to our troubles and to our worries, we will give aid to our digestive activities. And it commented that if prayer would only get men away from their selfish material worries it might be far more than an aid to digestion; "there is danger that even when they do pray they are not detaching themselves from the sordid grubbing with which they fill their lives." Then it concluded with this fine thought: The prayer that lifts man to spiritual communion canimparted to the heart by God's own wisdom in His Word.

Sardines in a box have long been regarded as representing a condition of about as nearly the perfect fitting of a great deal into a small space as was possible. But, according to word from the United States Department of Commerce, this simile is outgrown, for one reads that new machinery for cutting the fishes so that they can be fitted more compactly into tin containers has been put into use in California. From now on, presumably, as loose as sardines in an oldfashioned box will be more nearly correct. Times change and sardine-packing changes kicked his heels, but Asa appeared to be oblivious to it all.

He had plenty of time to spare, for this was one of his rare holidays—one of the few red-letter days when he forsook the farm in Vermont for the metropolis, just to see how the world wags in a big city. He absorbed enough on these periodic visits to stock up with conversational matter for several months; and when his prestige seemed to be about to wane, a trip to the city always brought it back

Presently Asa's attention was claimed by a seedy-looking person who stood on the opposite corner, and ostenta-tiously opened a leather bag; taking out of the bag something which Asa could not see, he made much business of preparing for some sort of impromptu demonstration. Of course, there was nothing else to do but walk across the street, when the opportunity presented itself, and inspect the thing at close quarters.

+ + + "Step up, friend!" said the man with alluring and ingrathe very latest thing in utility tools. This patent auger is guaranteed to drill a hole in the hardest wood quicker and cleaner than anything ever invented!" The street-corner vendor began to raise his voice and his gaze wandered from Asa and embraced anybody and everybody within hearing. In a few seconds, half a dozen or so men and boys stopped to listen to the man, and his talk now took the form of an oration to the small group.

"Gentlemen, this is an age of speed; yes, sir—SPEED!
We have to do things quickly to get by these days. Even little things such as drilling holes. You are probably all handy men around the house, and you know how annoying it is to have an auger that won't make a hole without a lot of effort; you know the dissatisfaction of having a tool that makes ragged holes instead of clean perforations, don't you? But don't worry; here's the little fellow that'll do the trick better than anything you've ever seen. And only fifteen cents!"

At this point he held up an auger which had a patent arrangement by which the business end of the tool could be made to rotate at great speed, by moving a wormlined reel up and down the stem or handle. But this initial effort to make a sale met with stolid indifference.

"What! You don't want this little wonder worker!" The peddler was grieved, hurt, chagrined, presumably astonished. "Come, gentlemen, you're joking. Fifteen cents for a tool like this! Why, it's giving it away; that's

After another harangue, a shy youth bought one and then hurried away as if ashamed of himself. Asa was then hurried away as if ashamed of himself. Asa was thoroughly enjoying himself; he liked to see how city folks act, and he liked to "figger out things," as he himself would have expressed it, and what he couldn't "figger out" just now was why these people didn't all jump at the chance of getting an auger for fifteen cents. And what was more surprising was that he hadn't jumped at it! Suddenly he stumbled on the reason; it came like a flash, and being ever ready with advice, Asa edged up to the itinerant salesman and, in an undertone, said, "Sell holes, brother: sell HOLES!" holes, brother; sell HOLES!'

The man looked at him in surprise, then a broad grin wrinkled his face, as he said, "Say, uncle, I believe you're right!" Without more ado he shut up his bag and went

Since there was nothing exciting going on after this, As a decided that lunch would be in order, and he ambled along cheerfully until he came to one of those dazzling white places, where everything glistens from the white walls

SA BERRY, like a parked car, stood on a corner of the busiest thoroughfare in the City at noon, when thousands of office and store clerks poured into the eets, augmenting the already large shopping crowds. Only jostled him, bumped him, stepped on his toes and ked his heels, but Ass appeared to be oblivious to it all. He absorbed enough on see periodic visits to stock up with conversational mature. "There you are gentlemen: that's what this little fel-

"There you are, gentlemen; that's what this little fellow will do, and you saw how he does it. Only twenty cents!" In a couple of minutes the man had sold six augers, because he sold HOLES first. Asa's little hirsute adornment, of the billy-goat variety, wagged excitedly. Fumbling in his trousers pocket, he brought out a handful of small change, and selecting two dimes, he handed them to the peddler, saying, "I guess if I don't get it now, you'll be a raisin' uv the price to a quarter!" The man looked at him sharply, then recognizing his erstwhile advisor, he winked, gave him an auger, and at the same time slipped the two coins back into Asa's hand.

During the afternoon, Asa made a tour of a large emporium which proclaimed keelf in scarlet five blocks away, and in which the price of no single article exceeded a dollar. Among the many things that tickled the Vermont farmer's fancy was a patent device for peeling potatoes, shredding cabbage, scalloping carrots, cucumbers, and other vegetables. "Just the thing for Emma," he said, thinking of his wife

But almost immediately his face clouded; the last time he had visited the city he had returned with an ingenious device for threading needles in the dark, or with one's eyes shut. Emma had scorned it; called it and all such contraptions "foolishness." The needle threader disappeared into his tool box, and from that day to this had never been mentioned. Unfortunately for Ass on that occasion, he had forgotten how it worked, before he him his cue, of course! He bought the potato peeler et al.

The next day after he had returned home to the farm he called Milly, his daughter, aside, and said, "Milly, you get your mother out uv the way for a spell this mornin' and then tell me what she wants fer dinner." Milly, knowing her father's weakness for anything new, laughed, but agreed to aid in the conspiracy, and Emma was inveigled into doing something which kept her out of the kitchen for an hour.

When she returned, she found the potatoes peeled and thinly sliced, all ready to drop into the boiling fat for frying; while the parings had been placed ostentatiously near at hand, and she noted that they were the thinnest parings she had ever seen. The cucumbers had been peeled, sliced, and the edges beautifully scalloped; while the coleslaw had been shredded with mathematical uniformity.

"Milly, you're a gem!" she exclaimed with surprise and

"It wasn't me, mother; it was dad!"
"What! Why, your dad couldn't peel a potato properly for $100! And you can't tell me that he sliced that—and that, and—why, what has he done with that cucumber, and how did he do it?" Admiration struggled with unreasonable resentment; then admiration won. "Ass, you've bought one of them contraptions? I know it. Them

Asa chuckled. "Yes, ma, but you've got to own it must be good if I can peel yer potatoes like that!"

"Quite true, Asa, but let me tell you I'd never have believed it if you hadn't shown me."

"Sell holes; that's pretty good," murmured Asa Berry to himself, as he sauntered into the yard with his hands in his tangent pockets.

The World's Great Capitals: The Week in London

tenary. Both in the dignity and size of its house as well as the wealth and social standing of its residents, Belgrave Square is perhaps unrivaled, although as things go in London it is a comparatively new place. Its site was originally a rubbish dump, but just a century ago the architect, Basevi, and the builder, Cubitt, took it in hand; the result being London's social center. The Earl of Essex was the first prominent person to take up residence in the square, and in consequence he was called "the decoy duck." Foday it numbers among its householders one member of the royal family, twelve members of the peerage, three members of Parliament, and many leading financiers and business men. Among the group are Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Duke of Bedford the Earl of Albemarle, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lord Hawke, and Earl Beauchamp.

+ + + Error in dress was not on the agenda of the Imperial Conference, but, according to the fastidious London tailors and cutters, it jolly well might have been. Why? Well, Stanley M. Bruce, Prime Minister of Australia, the Beau Brummel of the British and Dominion statesmen participating in the great pow-wow at 10 Downing Street, arrived at one of the sessions properly attired, but with one seriously discordant sartorial note. He was wearingspats! Now spats, be it said, are no longer worn by smartly dressed men in London, according to the Tailor and Cutter, a trade journal which dealt with this blunder with almost painful candor. It praised, at the same time, the Canadian Premier, Mackenzie King, and William Cosgrave, the President of the Irish Free State, for the correctness of their dress. The periodical affirmed that spats are not an Australian fashion, that the "diggers" do not thus protect and embellish their ankles. It observed that "while spats are essentially a dandy article of attire, they belong to yesteryear," and related that after a recent garden party at Buckingham Palace the shrubberies were snowed under with white spats discarded by Americans who, at the last moment, found out their mistake. They took their courage and their feet in their hands, says the journal, and "flung away the offending garments," which, it sagely advised, was what Mr. Bruce should do.

+ + + King George and Queen Mary, amid the pressing rounds of state and social duties, are finding time to give their royal protection to a pair of pheasants which are raising a brood in the gardens of Buckingham Palace. Pheasants are supposed to be shy creatures, and to have them nest-ing within the heart of this big city is a singular testi-mony to the quietude of busy London. Late in the sum-mer they came to the gardens and established a home in mer they came to the gardens and established a home in the shrubbery. The King's valet discovered them, and at once won their friendship by scattering bread crumbs and suet in an adjacent flower bed. Finally he shifted the feeding ground until he was rewarded by seeing five young birds, fledglings, venture on the lawn. Queen Mary, pleased by the arrival of her feathered guests, one day saw the entire brood in the open, and since then both she and the King have become much interested in the birds and often feed them. Although all now fly, none so far has indicated any desire to leave the present happy home.

Wesley acquired this building for £150 in 1739, after it had been a ruin for a quarter of a century. He made good use of the building, using it as a preaching center, a residence for himself, a day school, a poorhouse, an unemployment bureau, a benevolent society and the first free dispensary in London. The renovated chapel in City Road is now visited by people from all parts of the world.

> + + + Lord Birkenhead, describing what he terms "the perfect secretary," in an address before the chartered Institute of Secretaries, paid a fine tribute to many humble civil service employees. Incredible efficiency was to be found among secretaries, whether of politicians or of great business corporations, he said. It was the secretary's business to protect an employer from all the mistakes he had actually made and, even more important, to see that he did not make those mistakes. The perfect secretary would protect his chief from making any mistake at all, he declared, because he ought to be aware of all the facts that public preoccupation had prevented his principal from completely mastering. The secretary ought to anticipate by some subtle instinct every sort of trouble that might arise and warn his employer against it. He counted the secretary wholly incompetent if he allowed his chief to get into any trouble at all. "It ought to be recognized in the secretary wholly incompetent in the allowed his chief to get into any trouble at all. "It ought to be recognized in the secretary wholly incompetent in the sec nized," he humorously opined, "as a complete and meri-torious defense, for any chief, who had been given bad advice by any secretary, or had been allowed by the secretary to follow a wrong course, to say, I am not responsi-ble. See my secretary!'" The institute has a member-ship of nearly 6000, with eleven branches in the United Kingdom and five overseas.
